The Water Delivery Company today launched a new version of its corporate website to both new and existing customers. The latest version includes significantly more details of our service and product offering, alongside a new section detailing information on the company, environmental policies, existing clients and references from clients. Online ordering sections have been added to enable clients to service their accounts online as well as through traditional communication channels.

The screenshot shows the homepage of The Water Delivery Company website. At the top left is the company logo, and at the top right is the phone number "Call us now on 0845 006 3309". Below this is a navigation menu with links: Home, Water Coolers, Why use us?, Our Water, Sparking Water, Health Benefits, News / Links, Contact, and FAQs. A "LATEST" news item is displayed: "any launch small pack bottles of water. ----- The Water Delivery Company sponsors Neil Cornick in the 22nd". The main content area features a blue background with a water cooler image and the text: "The Water Delivery Company is a family-run business focused on the supply of high quality water coolers and refreshing spring water to businesses within the M25." Below this are three columns of content:

- Welcome to our website: "With over 1000 customers across London we are one of the last independent suppliers of water and watercoolers to businesses and homes within the M25. Please click on the link below to get our contact details and simply pick up the phone and call us on 0845 006 3309." Below this is a link: "Please use this link to see our contact details".
- Why use us: "We are a focused, family run business based out of London and focused only on London. We deliver when you want it - not when we can. New customers can expect high service levels, value for money and stylish coolers. This is reflected in the results of our customer survey and the references clients give us." Below this is a link: "Click here for information on our company, clients, staff and environmental policies."
- Our Watercoolers: "We offer potential and existing customers a wide variety of great looking watercoolers to suit any business or home environment. These may be bottled or mains-fed watercoolers." Below this is a link: "Click here or on the coolers below for more details." and an image showing four different models of water coolers.
